Rain Stopper

Balinese have a tradition to stop, hold, or divert it to other locations or to simply hold it for several hours. The aim is to secure a rain-free spot where a function or activity is being held. Many important occasions in Bali and other parts of Indonesia were made rain-free by traditional means. To ensure the smooth running of a festival, a ritual of rain stopping will usually be performed.

The ritual of rain-stopping or diverting is not an eye-catching activity because it is performed low key. It is performed by officiating small offerings and burning incense, as well as a plate of fire (pengasepan). All of these aim to produce smoke that upon rising up is believed to be able to push the clouds away.

Rain Stopper service available at IDR 5,500,000 ++ for 1 time event

Kayumanis Private Villa could not be held responsible for the adverse weather conditions or the failure of the services provided by a Balinese rain stopper should you wish to use one.
